

Tech Summary

PropOps combines the contractor data of your building operations to produce a real estate portfolio with a full maintenance history. The technologies required for this are internet best practices.

- ❁ The FieldPass microservice infrastructure, which specialises in service and building data, has been developed within the corporate group for ten years.
- ❁ Software development takes place at the sister companies Feil, Feil & Feil in Ludwigsburg near Stuttgart, Germany and FFUF Manila in the Philippines in routine development processes.
- ❁ The industry standard Keycloak provides audited and secure identity, role and rights management based on OpenID Connect and OAuth 2.0.
- ❁ The infrastructure is hosted natively in Microsoft's Azure Cloud and operated professionally according to an operating concept.

API first approach

Every piece of information in PropOps can be read and written via its modular microservices. What's more, all apps developed in-house by PropOps only use these interfaces. Digitisation activities. All microservices are OpenAPI (see api.propops.com) specified and can be used for further apps, Cloud2Cloud connections, robotics and sensor integration and every imaginable type of automation, regardless of technology used.

Operations

Like all instances of FieldPass and the business models it supports, PropOps is also based on a professional operating plan. This includes:

Regular updates of FieldPass for permanent security and stability,

Scalable hosting in European data centres from Microsoft Azure and

Reliable monitoring of all services at both microservice and application level,

An agile, German and English-speaking support team available during business hours from Monday to Friday from 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. (CET)
